

Style guide for Video Vortex Reader

This Style Guide is an appropriated version of the annotation style guide used for the MyCreativity Reader and the Video Vortex Reader, so if you have a copy of that, you can use it for reference.

Publication in this book does not preclude you from submitting your text (most likely revised) for publication elsewhere. It would be great if you could acknowledge the text was published in the Urban Screens Reader.

The publication date for the reader is planned in December 2009.

We would like to ask you to take some time to use this referencing system or adopt your essay to it, which will save us a lot of work in editing the texts.

General rule: keep it simple, avoid formatting. This means: Use single spacing between lines, justify on left only.

Do not use tabs for paragraph breaks at any time. Mark paragraph breaks with one extra 'hard return'.

Do not use underlining at any time: for emphasis use italics; subtitles can be placed in bold.

1. All references should be auto-inserted footnotes (no in-text references in other words).
2. Commas and full stops should be placed after the quotation mark.
3. All quotations should use single quotation marks except in instances of a quote inside a quote (in such cases use double-quotes inside single quotation marks).
4. Larger quotations should be inserted without quotation marks as a 1cm indented paragraph (no indentation on the right margin).
5. Texts referenced in footnotes should adopt the following format:
[note placement of commas, etc.]

For footnote references that have more than one citation, provide a short reference:

first citation: Marc Bousquet, 'The "Informal Economy" of the Information University', Workplace: A Journal for Academic Labour 5.1 (2002), <http://www.cust.educ.ubc.ca/workplace/issue5p1/bousquetinformal.html>.

second/third/etc citation: Bousquet, 'The "Informal Economy" of the Information University'.

If the first citation has a subtitle, then drop the subtitle in future references.

At the end of your essay provide a full list of all references. The difference from the above references is that they should be listed alphabetically with author's surname first:
