I have just posted onto the pages of this blog an extensive email interview that I did with Italian media theorist Vito Campanelli. Here it is. Thanks to Henry Warwick in San Francisco for the copy editing! In the interview we discuss what 'web aesthetics' could be all about, how the situation looks like in Italy concerning new media and theory, and discuss if there is something like sophistication in web design.