INC news, July 2017

We wish you a great summer! INC will be back again at the end of August.

- Zero Infinite #4: INC podcast about The Online Self
- Fear and Loathing of the Online Self: videos online
- Book launch Miriam Rasch in pictures
- German translation of Geert Lovink's latest book: Im Bann der Plattformen

Zero Infinite #4: The Online Self

Listen to the fourth episode of INC podcast Zero Infinite, which zooms in on the online self and selfies, with Ana Peraica, Wendy Chun and Rebecca Stein. In the studio, we discuss algorithmic identity, the importance of the background in selfies and the phenomenon of the ‘drelfie’.

You can find the podcast here, or in the Soundcloud or iTunes podcast apps.

Fear and Loathing of the Online Self: videos online

Videos of the lectures of the conference that was held last May in Rome are gradually coming in. Watch the first ones here.

Including presentations by Biella Coleman, Franco Berardi, and Jodi Dean. Topics include online subjectivity theory, going behind and beyond the selfie, artistic practices of the online self, and the politics and aesthetics of mask design.

Keep an eye out on our Vimeo account for more to come.
Book Launch Miriam Rasch

On June 22nd Miriam’s book Zwemmen in de Oceaan was presented. After an introduction by Geert Lovink, Miriam talked to Daan Stoffelsen about being human in a world dominated by data.

Pictures of the launch are available on the INC Flickr.

The opening essay from Miriam’s book was translated into English for the INC Longform series: The Post-digital Condition.

Geert Lovink: Im Bann der Plattformen

Pictures are available here. You can listen to the presentation here (in German).

Enjoy the summer with INC Longforms

NETWORKCULTURES.ORG/LONGFORM ONLINE

Twitter  Website